Question: Why should I even Consider Replacing Jim Langevin as My Representative in Congress?

Answer: Because You and Mark Zaccaria have Shared Experiences that allow Mark to Understand you Better, and that means Represent You Better.

Here's Why: Mark Zaccaria has done what you've done. He's served in the US Military. He's raised a family here in Rhode Island. He's tried to get by on a Corporate paycheck, and despite his best efforts he's been laid off more than once when a distant management has decided to 'Reorganize.' Sound familiar? Through all that Mark has also had to deal with Government as an ordinary citizen. That means he's had to put up with the bureaucracy and the myriad regulations; as an ordinary taxpayer, as a small businessman, and a small town Councilman.

Somewhere in that list, there are shared experiences with virtually every citizen of the Second District of Rhode Island. Jim Langevin doesn't have any of those experiences. He is as much a product of government as he is its constituent.

So what?

So Congressman Langevin won't have the same visceral reaction to new legislative proposals that Mark Zaccaria will have. Langevin won't be as able to feel from his own experience just what some new measure will mean to the ordinary citizens of the District or of the country as a whole. Zaccaria will.

When you hire a Representative in Congress you are selecting someone to Speak for You in that national forum. We all know that only one vote out of 435 in the House cannot rule the day. Jim Langevin has proved that through his four terms in your seat, just as every other Rep on either side of the aisle has, too. One Voice out of 435, however, is all it takes to start the Buzz for something worthwhile. One voice that talks sense can start a ball rolling that other, like minded Members will chime in with and begin to echo.

The Key is that what a US Rep says has to really be the voice of the people he or she represents. Mark Zaccaria is more like you. He can't help but think more like you than the Representative in Congress you have today.

Mark Zaccaria will speak with Your Voice when he speaks for you.

Please keep that in mind when you go to the Polls on November 4th.
